Spending their way to economic recovery; how can investors participate in the Middle East markets?

Spending their way to economic recovery; how can investors participate in the Middle East markets?

Consistently high energy prices have given Middle East nations the financial firepower to embark on huge spending for projects such as FIFA World Cup 2022 in Qatar and UAE's bid for World Expo 2020. Find out how investors can benefit from this economic activity as the region opens up to global investors.

Translating process into performance - Emerging market debt

Translating process into performance - Emerging market debt

John will argue that we are likely to continue to see volatile markets, but that this will create a raft of opportunities for active managers. John discusses that need for a robust investment process that provides attractive, risk-adjusted returns from emerging markets short duration and corporate debt. He will examine vital credit quality criteria for any investors.
